The project, which is currently in progress, involves the improvement of the coastal area overlooking the Mar Piccolo.

The intervention consists of the reconstruction of the quay (bearing structure, flooring, public lighting) and the creation of floating jetties equipped for the docking of the fishing fleet (300 berths).

The intervention aims to guarantee the best possible use of the areas around the Mar Piccolo, which is both a site of great tourist interest and a working harbour which must be equipped to dock the numerous boats from both the local fishing fleet and from other Southern regions.

The cost of the intervention, supervised by the Commune of Taranto, is over 5.1 million Euros, financed from the Puglia Regional Operational Programme (ROP).

The works are due to be completed by May 2004.
